That Governor Fuller has begun to interview witnesses who testified at the trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was revealed at the State House today.

The Governor will not appoint a commission to go over the case, but will determine the issue himself, was the expressed opinion of Assistant District Attorney Dudley W. Haney of Norfolk County after a conference with the Governor.

2 WOMEN INTERVIEWED.

Shortly after the conference Governor Fuller interviewed some of the trial witnesses, including two women, whose names were withheld at their request.

With Governor Fuller in the conference, which marks an approach to the zero hour when the Governor will make known his decision on the doomed men, were his secretary, Herman A. McDonald, and his personal attorney, Joseph Wiggins.

An air of suppressed excitement pervaded the State House today. A number of men, infinitely connected OSWING, N. Y., May 17.—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder's collapse in the death house at Sing Sing was over today and in its place was a rage that lashed at her guards and especially at Henry Judd Gray, the man she once loved.

"This is a hell of a place," she stormed when told she would be permitted only a half-hour's exercise in every 24 hours. "I have to walk to keep slim—and now they won't let

State police have been ordered under no circumstances to let Leonard Cline, playwright and novelist, whose friend, Wilfred Irwin of New York City, died from a wound received at Cline's Mansfield farm, out of their sight.

This order followed discovery of a noose in Cline's home which investigators believe had been prepared by Cline with suicidal intent. Cline today was recovering from his wounds.

RUTH AND MARIE PROVE MOB PSYCHOLOGY IS UNCHANGED

The illicit sweethearts who during the week of June 20 are scheduled to pay with their lives for the slaying of Albert Snyder, rolled back the pages of history on their journey to Sing Sing. As they passed through the jeering crowd that lined the street outside the jail in Long Island City, N. Y., they could recall the historic ride of Marie Antoinette to guillotine in 1793. She, too, was jeered as she rode to her death, as is illustrated in the K. Klein painting at the right.

N. E. DEFENSE FORCES BATTLE 74,000 COAST INVADERS

Newport, R. I., May 17.—Boaring, swooping scout planes overhead; the measured tramp of speeding troops below; huge coast defense guns arching their ugly muzzles towards the enemy and graybeards gathered over maps at headquarters.

These are the scenes here today where war is declared and military outposts challenge at every approach for the enemy to offshore with an army of 74,000 men and at any minute the murky haze which has hung along the coast may be dispelled by the flashing of its guns.

War is in the air. War is down below. War is on the water and war, truly just a game this time, yet a serious game, is being lived by every military and naval man engaged. Theoretically a Black fleet is somewhere "out there" with planes, battle cruisers, submarines, destroyers and, most important probably of all, troop ships carrying 74,000 fighting men.

To REFUSE 17,000. If these fighting men are landed on the beaches here, then New England, industrially wealthy and vital to the nation, will be cut off from the rest of the country with an enemy fighting men in every home and the bygone for restlessness that is, theoretically.

Counting the defense forces to Major-General Preston Brown. As his weapons he has divisions of troops, theoretically; Marie scout planes, actually; a small fleet of destroyers and submarines, actually; coast defense guns and the pick of the army's intelligence forces.

The enemy is a fleet of seventy-four men-o-war, actually, and the huge imaginary army. He, too, is equipped with scout planes and

Mrs. Snyder Wept When She Left Her Pet Mouse

Long Island City, N. Y., May 17 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Ruth Snyder wept when she had to leave her pet mouse in her cell in the Queens County Jail.

Mrs. Snyder had no fear of the little creature, feeding it bits of food from her own mouth. She said it was one of the few friends she had.

RUTH RAGES IN DEATH HOUSE

After Mrs. Snyder had stormed at her guards because she could not have more exercise, she was told the regulations must be followed for all prisoners.

"That's all right for the regulations," she retorted, "but it leaves me in a terrible mood."

But she took the half hour walk permitted her in the women's exercise yard, which is twenty-four feet long, eighteen feet wide and has a twenty-foot wall.

Gray also was permitted to exercise. He went to the men's yard and at the suggestion of his longers began to play hand ball. She missed the ball nearly every time.

"Why, you can't play this game," a keeper said. "You can't see."

"That's part of the penalty," Gray replied quietly, referring to the fact that his glasses have been taken from him.

He finished his exercise period by walking.

Both prisoners slept for about 12 hours last night. Warden Lewis E. Lawes said he believes their sleep was due mostly to exhaustion.

"The storm was so bad that the occupants of the cell finally had to have a man and a boy dig them out of a snow drift," Whitmore said.

In reply to a question by counsel Mr. Whitmore said:

"I saw the couple I afterward learned was Mr. Doane and Mrs. Doane go to the yacht club together, probably twenty or thirty times. Sometimes they would go into the locker house. At other times they would go on the yacht."

Asked to describe what would take place when the couple went aboard the yacht, Mr. Whitmore said:

"Sometimes Mr. Doane would go directly in the cabin, stay a little while and then come up and raise the sails. Sometimes Mrs. Doane would go to the cabin also. On other occasions she would remain on deck."

Whitmore told on one occasion the couple sailing down the harbor at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 11 o'clock that night they had not returned.

The witness was asked if he could identify Doane and Mrs. Doane. He pointed out Doane, who sat in the front of the courtroom, and then pointed to Mrs. Doane, who was seated just back of him.

Whitmore's daughter told of detectives using their home for the purpose of observing Doane and Mrs. Doane.

Asked why she was so interested in the action of the couple, she replied that it was on account of her friendship for Mrs. Doane.

"Did she ever give you anything?" she was asked.

"Yes. She gave me a Christmas present last year. That is all," was the reply.

Doane and Mrs. Doane visited the clubhouse Summer and Winter, according to Whitmore. He told of seeing them drive there during a raging blizzard on one occasion.

transfusion, performed in an attempt to save Irwin's life, for which Cline saved a pint of blood.

Cline said he was "feeling fine" and wanted to go to get out of St. Joseph's Hospital, where his friend died shortly before midnight.

No formal charge has been placed against the playwright. A woman's hearing will be held at police headquarters this afternoon.

An autopsy showed that the wound had been caused by a choke bore shotgun, between thirty and thirty-six caliber, fired from a distance. The shooting, Cline said, was accidental.

George J. Irwin, Whitmore's brother, who is a professor at Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., came here during the night to claim the body. He will make arrangements to have it shipped to Lexington where Whitmore lived until a couple of years ago as such as possible.

Besides George Whitmore is survived by his widow Mrs. Jane Irwin, his parents Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Irwin and two sisters of Lexington and another brother, J. P. Irwin of Cleveland, O. He was a New York insurance writer, thirty-four years old.

Police have been unable to locate Irwin's wife, who was a weekend visitor at the Cline home. Cline's wife has not been at Mansfield for some time.

Before his death Irwin made a statement to the coroner, but the nature was not disclosed. Cline, so far as known, has made no statement regarding his part in the shooting. He has retained an attorney to whom he refers all questions.

The lawyer, however, has refused to discuss this case.

DE PINEDO GOES ON TO CANADA

Cleveland, O., May 17 (A.P.).—A plane identified by observers as that of Francesco De Pinedo, Italian flyer, seemingly was somewhere over Lake Erie today on his flight from Chicago to Montreal.

De Pinedo's plane had been reported forced down in Michigan.

Picked up by watchers at Bryan, in the northwest corner of Ohio, the course of the plane, believed to be his, was followed past Toledo and on to Vermillion, O., about 50 miles west of her, where it was said to have turned north and disappeared over the lake at 11:35 a. m.

The fact that he turned from his course at Vermillion led to the belief that he was steering a straight course from there to Montreal, directly across the length of the lake.

 Rose Miles, of No. 28 Converse avenue, Malden, is America's fairest in the opinion of Dr. Harry B. Bornstein, Boston plastic surgeon. He mis- took her on Tremont street for Miss Norma Smallwood who was crowned "Miss America" last year. However, he found Miss Miles' measurements were nearer Venus' marks than those of "Miss America."

EASIER TO LEARN THAN TO BE IGNORANT IN 1927

Cleveland, O., May 17 (A.P.)—Get an education nowadays is easier than avoiding one, in the opinion of Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. "It is becoming rather hard to avoid some sort of an education in the United States," said Dr. Scott, a speaker on the program of the American Association for Adult Education. He mentioned part time schools, libraries, clubs, night schools, Sunday schools, chateaus, lycées, social settlements, books, newspapers, magazines, radio stations, motion pictures and commercial houses as contributing to the intellectual growth of the individual. There is no age limit to learning, he declared, a lot of 60 being as young as 20.

Yesterday the American Advertiser gained 318 Classified Ads over the corresponding day last year.

MISS AMERICA'S RIVAL FOUND IN BOSTON

Nearer to perfection than the form of "Miss America" is the figure of Rose Miles, 17-year-old Malden beauty, in the opinion of Dr. Harry B. Bornstein, a plastic surgeon, with offices on Boston street. Dr. Bornstein made his "find" on Tremont street, a thoroughfare which has fed the trend of many daily fashions. He had approached Miss Miles in the belief that she was Norma Smallwood, the Oklahoma girl who captured the "Miss America" title a year ago. Apologies and an invitation to submit to measurements were accepted, with the result that the Malden girl was found to compare more closely with Venus' measurements than did Miss Smallwood. "Miss Miles is even more gracefully built than Miss Smallwood," said Dr. Bornstein. "I met Miss America in Philadelphia soon after she was awarded the title and I have had a chance to compare measurements with those of Miss Miles." "Miss Miles is more gracefully built though she bears a striking resemblance to the Oklahoma girl. She is what is known as a 'perfect 10'." Her measurements are: Neck, 11 inches; girth, 28 inches; bust, 34 inches; calf, 14 inches; upper arm, 14 inches; wrist 6 inches. "Her lips are beautifully arched in a perfect Cupid's bow, ears are set back, nose arched, giving a classical appearance." "Her hair is unobbed, jet black and of a wavy, silky texture. The forehead is curved, denoting keen intellect, and her teeth a pearl white without a flaw." The arms are gracefully curved and the hips resemble those of an Indian maiden, denoting athletic tendency. "I have found that the texture and shade of her skin are slightly under par compared with that of Miss Smallwood, and under my direction she is undergoing a course of treatment with rejuvenating cream."

$40,000,000 DIVORCEE IN A NEW ROMANCE

(Copyright, 1927, by International News)

Park, May 17—Romance has again entered the life of Millicent Rogers, youthful divorced wife of Count Ludwig Salm Von Hoerstadt, in the person of an Argentine Beau Brummel—Senior Arturo Peralta Ramon.

Although the countess has been divorced only a few weeks it was learned today that she has admitted to friends that she expects to be married to "Arturo," as many of his friends affectionately call him.

The affection between the couple seems to have been mutual from the start. Colonel H. H. Rogers of New York, Standard Oil multimillionaire and father of Millicent, learning of his daughter's new romance, hurried to Paris to investigate and to prevent what he feared might be another disastrous divorce.

FRANCE IS WEALTHY.
 Just what saved between the father and the young $40,000,000 divorcee is not known, but shortly afterward the American multimillionaire met Arturo, who is himself very rich.

Rogers, it is understood, has not yet given his definite consent to the marriage, but has allowed his daughter to believe that he would consent if the couple did not show too much haste.

Rogers expressed some disappointment that Millicent did not choose a Frenchman, of the United States this time.

Romance is about 36 years old, stands 6 feet 4 inches, is devoted to tennis and winter sports and is described by his friends as a "divine dancer." In fact, the Argentine is almost a prototype of Count Salm, except he has a private fortune, whereas the American nobleman had none.

POPULAR SPORTSMAN.
 The Argentine is very popular with the Paris smart set, in which circles he is well known, especially among the North Americans. He is fond of automobiles and owns two powerful motor cars.

When it was recalled to the countess that, at the time of her divorce, she said she would marry if she could find a man who would love her, she laughed as she replied: "Well, Arturo is a South American, but he is more of a North American than he is of the Argentine type. His many North American friends have 'Americanized' him."

It was reported he made the trip involuntarily, being kept aboard at New York by friends until too late to disembark. If so, he apparently made his farewell visit fully equipped, for when the liner reached here he had two suitcases in his cabin and was attended to by his valet. He refused to talk of the impropriety voyage, and went on with the Aquitaine to Southampton.

G. F. BAKER IN BOSTON FOR BAPTISING

A little bundle of humanity lay bubbling happily and wriggling tiny fingers and ten equally small toes today amid ministrations of godfather, George F. Baker, aged philanthropist and donor of the Harvard Business School, who was present at the christening as godfather.

His wife, Mrs. George F. Baker, aged philanthropist and donor of the Harvard Business School, was present at the christening as godmother. The ceremony took place at the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bullock, No. 6 Channing street, Cambridge.

TAKES HIS STROLL.
 Mr. Baker arrived in Boston today for the dual purpose of attending the christening and meeting the directors of the New England Telephone Company scheduled for today.

Miss Florence Marshall, head of the Manhattan Trade School, New York, came on to be godmother for her grandnephew, Mr. D. Brewer Baker of Newville, N.Y.

Following his custom when in Boston, Mr. Baker, hale and hearty and accompanied by a nurse, and private secretary, took a stroll for exercise along Commonwealth avenue.

HE LIKES BOSTON.
 "The quiet and reserve of Boston relieves the sensibilities of one who lives in a whirling metropolis like New York," he said. "That is why I rather anticipate always a visit here. He is to leave for New York tomorrow."

The millionaire banker, who was 77 years old last March, was thought to be seriously ill just before his last birthday and many thousands of acres were devoted to the illness in newspapers throughout the world. On his recovery, however, he declared characteristically that it had been "just a little cold."

DOT'S MOVE RIP PAL OF STELL OF VISITS

Los Angeles, May 17 (A.P.)—Their appetites for sensation whetted by a Japanese housewife's recital of all night visits to Dorothy Mackaye, actress, to the apartment of Paul Kelly, film actor, crowds which daily storm the courtroom where Kelly is on trial for the murder of Ray Raymond, actor husband of Miss Mackaye, avidly awaited more details of the love affair today.

From that they would not wait in vain was given when prosecution attorneys announced today's witness would include Miss Helen Wilkinson, a friend of Miss Mackaye, who often accompanied her on visits to Kelly's apartment, and Max Wagner, who shared the apartment with the film actor.

The housewife, "Jungle," a small, alert Japanese, told in broken, but plain English of the meetings of Kelly and the actress.

She disclosed that among his duties were those of "gin mixer" for the apartment guests. He declared that a half dozen rounds of drinks were served on the eve of Easter Sunday when Kelly deserted the party for a short time to go to the Raymond building and engage in a quarrel with the State contenda.

The prosecution holds that it was the beating administered by Kelly which caused the death of Ray Raymond in a hospital three days later. "Jungle" declared that when Kelly returned to the apartment he was "spattered on his coat sleeve."

While the housewife was testifying, Mrs. J. R. Cederholm of West Hills, N. Y., Raymond's mother, faintly and wearily withered on the courtroom.

Miss Mackaye was not in court when the Japanese testified. Her testimony was completed in the day. It added little to her previous story except for a description of a "reparation and drove party."

She said it was given while both her husband and herself were with their shows in San Francisco to some 250 school newspaper editors and others.

Asked under cross-examination whether Raymond mentioned her name in announcing that it was a divorce party, Miss Mackaye answered sharply, "He was married to only one woman, and that was me."

"SILENCE!" SAYS COOLIDGE, "IF I AM SILENT!"

Washington, May 17 (A.P.)—In recent weeks a number of newspapers have announced that repeated questions as to the President's candidacy for re-election had been ignored at the White House newspaper conference.

Without a dissent to these stories, it was announced today that Coolidge does not think it proper for a President to say that such and such questions have been asked of him, and have gone unanswered.

He takes the view that it is a question to be presented and not one made to it, nothing about the incident should appear in print.

PUBLISHER DEFAULTS IN 'AMERICAN TRAGEDY' CASE

Donald E. Fries, one of the publishers of "An American Tragedy," now in Europe, was defaulted by Judge Peadar today in the Superior Court when his case was called for trial. Fries had been ordered to pay a fine of $100 imposed upon him in Municipal Court when found guilty of selling an objectionable book.

Council for Fries, counsel for Fries, obtained a continuance of the case without a default, but Judge Peadar declined to grant the request, and announced that no warrant would be issued for the arrest of Fries, provided that he appeared in court on June 25.

HARVARD BOARD ELECTS SMITH

The resignation of Dr. Henry Pickering Walcott from the Harvard Corporation was accepted today by the board of overseers, and to succeed Dr. Walcott, who is eighty-eight years of age, the overseers ratified the selection of Jeremiah Smith, Jr., prominent Boston attorney and international finance expert.

Dr. Walcott graduated from Harvard in 1882 and three years later he secured his medical degree from Brown University. He took up the practice of medicine in Cambridge and thirty-seven years ago he was elected a member of the Harvard Corporation, serving continuously until today.

Mr. Smith, who succeeds Dr. Walcott, is a member of the Boston law firm of Herrick, Smith, Davis & Parley. He graduated from Harvard in 1882. For several years Mr. Smith was counsel general for Hungary for the League of Nations. At that time he made an international reputation for himself by reorganizing and rehabilitating the war-torn country.

TASCHEREAU LIBERALS SWEEP QUEBEC ELECTION

Montreal, Que., May 17 (N.B.)—Registering a sweeping victory in the provincial election, the Taschereau Liberal Government today returned to power with an increased majority. The new parliament will consist of 72 Liberals, ten Conservatives and two Independent Liberals. At dissolution the standing was 64 Liberals, 15 Conservatives and three vacant seats.

The Liberals gained five seats on Montreal Island, where the fight raged with extreme bitterness. A feature was the retention of Verdun by the Liberals.

HORACE DODGE WILL NOT CONTEST DIVORCE SUIT

Detroit, May 17 (A.P.)—Noting that Horace F. Dodge, son of the automobile magnate, would not contest the divorce suit of Mrs. Louise K. Dodge, she has filed in Circuit Court here. He several times said he would not fight her, she can have anything she wants.

Friends of the couple recently were actively interested in the suit, but after Dodge met him on the back, saying, "Although you do not want it, I am your knight of the Golden Fleece."

FULLER WILL DECIDE FATE OF SACCO

waiting to see the Governor and have been called to tell their stories. Among them is Joseph Ferrara, Sacco's detective.

Ferrara said he did not believe the stick of dynamite found in the Plymouth postoffice had anything to do with the Sacco-Vanzetti case. "I see no reason to make any connection," he said, "and personally believe there is not the slightest."

Police are working on the theory that it was the work of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, Plymouth having been the home town of Vanzetti. The explosive was discovered by a resident who was in the postoffice to get his mail.

So persistent was the postoffice and the dynamite was uncovered except by its natural brown paper wrapping.

Less than a week ago dynamite was found in the mail in Boston addressed to Governor Fuller. It was discovered by a postal employee. In that case also there was no person to make the explosive an infernal machine.

Bartolomeo Vanzetti lived in North Plymouth, was well known here, and was living at the time of his arrest. It is known that the two men have a long record of political and social activities in Plymouth jail, and it is known that a police guard has been established in Plymouth jail, and it is known that there have been threats to dynamite that institution.

POlice CALLED IN

It was the quick eye of a fisherman, Jacob Snyder, which prevented wholesale destruction of property and possible loss of life.

Snyder had gone to look in his mail when he saw the dynamite. It was in the regulation brown paper package coated with paraffin and was carried on its run.

"Law freeing; 90 per cent. high explosion," Snyder pointed out his find to

Sacco Hymn and Protest on Same Music Record

Phonograph records bearing on one side a hymn to Sacco-Vanzetti and on the other a protest against the treatment accorded the men arrived here in a shipment to a Hanover street merchant today.

Shortly after he had displayed of them in his store there was a rush on them and he sent for another shipment.

Putnam Howard M. Doughty, who is in communication with Chief of Police John J. Armstrong, there seems to the authorities no question but that somebody deliberately planted the stick in the waste.

The stick will be examined by experts at the State House today and also by fingerprint experts.

Pittsburgh, May 17 (A.P.)—A plea for executive clemency for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti is to be carried to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts today by M. A. ## DECIMO CLUB JUMPS FEE AS PROBES GO ON

While three investigations by Boston police and Massachusetts State authorities were under way today, officers of the Decimo club, Incorporated, were busy at the Tremont street headquarters of the club.

Instead of being disturbed at the investigation of the authorities, the club, organized in 1914, is in charge of the New England activities of the club, declared that he had received a wire from New York headquarters announcing that the $12 initiation fee in New England ended at midnight.

"It will now cost $100 to get into the club," he said, "and as he must be ready to depart for Providence to look after the club activities in that city."

He designated P. L. Mori to stand in for him in Boston until he returns.

The Boston police, the attorney-general and the State commissioner of corporations and taxation are endeavoring to find out what the club is all about and whether or not it can legally operate in Massachusetts.

The club is chartered under the laws of Delaware and its head office is in New York.

Newark, N. J., May 17 (A.P.)—An announcement was made today that the Decimo club, which is under investigation in Boston, had closed a campaign in Newark.

George T. Mortimer, organizer in this district, called at the office of the State commissioner of corporations and taxation to acquire that official with the club and was seen here. He was unsuccessful in meeting the secretary, but he exhibited a certificate issued by the Secretary of State granting the club authority to do business in New Jersey.

He said that he visited to the present office had been dropped by the activity of the Investor's Protection Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Young Folk Rehearsing for "Review of Dance" at Repertory Theatre

BEHIND THE SCENES AT the Repertory Theatre will be all affluence with young people tomorrow afternoon. All the budding corymbes will be there, going through a dress rehearsal for next Friday's Review of Dance, the annual presentation of the Bragittoli School to show adoring parents and admiring friends just how expert small sons and daughters can be at interpreting the Muse of Dance. A dress rehearsal is much more fun for the performers than the actual performances themselves, and Society, in its younger element, is gorgeously arrayed for the affair.

A PRETTY NUMBER DONE BY an eager-eyed sub-debuteante is the "Dutch Tulips." Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman's small daughter, Mrs. Charlotte, is a tulip. Little Miss Barbara Bremer, daughter of Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Homans, Miss Helen Cabot, Miss Julia Jenkins and Miss Harriet Fuller, each is a bright blossom in the tulip garden. The Bragittoli dance reviews are always cleverly done and beautifully costumed, and from all that's being said this Spring's two performances are no exception.

ALTERNATING SUNSHINE and showers in no wise dimmed the wedding guests who gathered in a flower-filled First Parish Church on in Cambridge when Miss Harriet Jackson became Mrs. Henry Webster Newbegin. The bride in ivory satin and tulle and the attendants in delicate chiffons made a wedding pageantry delicately lovely in its slow progression stairward. Allen Winchester Jackson gave his daughter in marriage, and her chief attendant was Mrs. Paul P. Cruikshank, of Connecticut.

AFTER THE CHURCH CEREMONIAL guests motored out handsome old Brattle street, to No. 202, for the reception at the Jackson home. Younger girls of 1927 and Williams men of the same year are interested in this alliance. Mr. Webster, who takes his bride to the British Isles for the honeymoon, brings her back to the new establishment in Cambridge. The bridegroom is a son of the late Rev. Edward H. Newbegin and Mrs. Newbegin of Cambridge. The former Miss Ellsworth Newbegin, his sister, is now Mrs. John A. Stephenson, Jr., of Minnesota, and came on to Cambridge to be an attendant at the ceremony.

AND RAIN, IT SEEMS, CANNOT DAUNT THOSE ENTHUSIASTS of the golf stick and racket who variously perform this week, the one set at the Bruce-Gray Club, the other at the Country Club. Mrs. Walter Tuttle, Jr., that handsome young matron who was Miss Faith Simpkins and a shining light of the Senior Supper Set, is one of the golf headliners. As for tennis, the list fairly brims with names of import. Miss Marjorie Morrill, Miss Minnie Fairley, Mrs. Roger Griswold, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mrs. George Baker, Jr., Miss Margaret and Miss Julia Blake, Mrs. Christine Frothingham, Miss Betty Scott, Miss Eleanor Holton, Miss Louise and Miss Priscilla Waterman, Miss Alice Lane and Mrs. "Gladys" Shaw, Jr., Miss Astrid Hayden, Miss Eleanor Gibson, Miss Marian Homans, Mrs. Charles A. Welch and Mrs. Charles B. Blanchard are out at the Country Club battling for doubles honors.

MISS LORRAINE LIGGETT WAS HOSTESS YESTERDAY FOR A Younger Set affair primarily of feminine interest—namely a luncheon, followed by an afternoon about the bridge tables. The Liggett home out in Newton was en fête for its young guests. Some of the Liggett horses are going down to Providence for the Jacobs Hill Show, and without doubt Miss Liggett, who rides so fearlessly and so well, will be on hand to put "Sir Pet" or "The Baron" over the jumps. That wonderful little mare, "Cinderella" of Mrs. Horace Christy's stable, is entered for the Jacobs Hill affair. "Cinderella" is a ribbon winner, and "Sir Pet" has several also to his credit.

ANOTHER BEACON STREET HOUSE IS SHUTTERED AND A line shrouded for the Summer. It is the handsome town establishment of Mrs. L. Carter Penno on the "water side" at No. 238, that takes on its habit of Summer somnolence as the family departs for the country home at Rowley. "Or Pasture Hill" the Pennos call their Summer place, a spacious manor house overlooking a wide domain of rolling moorland such as is typical of the Essex County country side. Mrs. Penno and her daughters always make a long season down there.

MINI PLAYMATES ARE LITTLE MISS ALICE PARKINSON DOOLITTLE and Master Peter Ely among the children of the fashionable set who sport themselves in the Public Garden. Miss Doolittle is the cunning small daughter of the Eben Doolittles of Marlborough street, and the gallant young man of the accompanying photograph is the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Ely of Beacon street.

ALICE PARKINSON DOOLITTLE

Happy little playmates in the Public Gardens are these two children of the fashionable Back Bay section.

HUB FIRES COST $20 PER CAPITA, SAYS HULTMAN

Fires in Boston cost every man, woman and child on the average $20 a year, Fire Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman told a group of business men, gathered at the Boston Chamber of Commerce today.

Counting fire losses, the cost of maintaining the fire department, and the overhead costs of fire insurance, the total fire bill for the city runs up to at least $15,000,000 a year, the commissioner declared.

The meeting was called by the National Fire Protection Association with the view of organizing a committee to extend the field work of the association throughout the State and all New England.

"It is particularly important that the business interests of Boston consider this fire loss problem," Commissioner Hultman said. "During the period of 1925, when the actual loss in Boston was $457 per capita, the fire loss in Baltimore, with whom we are in constant competition, was only $2.66 per capita."

"In New York it was $3.11, in Philadelphia $2.45, and in St. Louis $3.36 per capita during that year."

"The losses in Boston were not affected by any one great fire in 1925, and the relative position of Boston in regard to the other cities which I have enumerated shows it to be the same if you consider ten-year averages."

B. & M. SHOWS HOW IT COULD SAVE $200,000

The Boston & Maine railroad would have $200,000 in increased revenues annually if it were permitted to establish freight rate schedules for the Maine & Minnesota Transportation Company similar to those for freight delivered to and received from the Lumbermen and American Hawaiian lines, Frank I. Berry, assistant to the president of the railroad, testified at today's Interstate Commerce Commission hearing at the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Attorney-General John McCard of Kentucky sat for the commission which is considering arguments advanced by the Boston & Maine and the Merchants & Miners for and against the replacement of the present light freight rates of freight exchange with a motor truck delivery.

Atty. Frederick K. Brown, representing the steamship company, attempted to bring the witness' testimony to a halt, claiming that it would result in labor difficulties and delay through the congestion of traffic. The witness denied that the freight would suffer from exposure in transfer from car to truck and truck to dock.

It was brought out that if the railroad is permitted to make the change in service, the entire cost of transfer by truck from the East Cambridge yards to the steamship docks would be borne by the steamship company, whereas the railroad under the present light freight exchange is delivered to waterfront by the railroad.

A REGULAR "MISS SOUSA"

YOUNGEST GIRL BAND LEADER IN U. S.
Miss Rhona Perkins, of No. 32 Egerton road, Arlington, youngest girl band leader in the United States, who will be seen Saturday in the big musical contest on the Common.

SOUSA TO LEAD SCHOOL BAND CONTEST

With Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa at its head, Boston will witness its banding parade next Saturday when 100 New England school bands and orchestras march to the Arena after a monster parade on morning on Boston Common. The parade occurs at 1:30 in the afternoon and will be reviewed by the eminent bandmaster from a stand in Copley Square. Previously Sousa will conduct 70 school bands, 2,000 players, in a mass concert on Boston Common. This is scheduled at 11:15 o'clock. At the Arena he will conduct separate concerts of the massed bands of the massed orchestra, thirty in number, and finally an ensemble of both bands and orchestras totaling a total of 2,000 players. The event on the Common are free to all.

KEEPS HIS PROMISE.
Sousa, just completing a country-wide tour, promised a month ago to be the guest conductor and conduct the ceremony of his appearance personally to members of the committee who visited him at his New York offices. The musical exercises of the day are part of the third annual contest of the New England School Bands and Orchestras and Public Band Concert Festival, schools from all over New England, 100 in all, have sent entries. Many come from the farthest points in Maine and Vermont. The juvenile musicians compete in a general contest which determines the best band and the best orchestra representing a New England school. The tests occur at the Foreman Bandstand in the Common and begin at 8 o'clock. At 10 o'clock musical organizations not competing in the contest will stage a band concert program and demonstration on the Common parade field. At 11 o'clock, also on the parade field, the boys' and girls drum and bugle corps, and the drum corps from Lincoln High School will furnish a program of marching and playing. The Sousa conducted massed concerts follow.

WINNERS IN 1926.
It is all under the auspices of the New England Musical Festival Association in cooperation with the Public Schools of Boston, the Boston Civic Music Association and the Boston Club of Boston, which organization is the host of the festival.

In 1926, Miss Maud M. Howe of Quincy, won the first prize in Class A, and the Boston Evening American editor, Mrs. Dorothy H. Maynard of Waterville, Me., won the first prize in Class B prize, and Miss H. O. Owen Jenkins, the Class C, first prize.

For fifty years he has been John Philip Sousa, but it's Sousa, not Sousa, and this is correct because he says so. A number of the most eminent musical people in Boston visited Lieutenant-Commander John Philip Sousa in New York yesterday to arrange his visit to Boston Saturday in conduct the musical school and orchestra concert on the Common. They addressed the eminent bandmaster as Mr. Sousa, according to his preference from time immemorial.

Girl, 16, Entrant in Worcester-Hub Hike

Miss Florence Leonard, 16, a high school girl, has entered the 44-mile hike between Worcester and Boston to take place within the next two weeks. An attempt will be made to better the present record. Many people have needlessly walked several miles every day in search of a suitable apartment, when a few moments spent reading the classified pages of the American and Advertiser would have accomplished the same result. That is the opinion of Mrs. O'Kunin of 5 Highland place, Roxbury. An apartment advertised by Mrs. O'Kunin was rented in less than one week through this medium.

The Old Curiosity Shop

But now—today—was a time for dreaming, for a last tender farewell to girlhood before a glorious adventure. . . . Jacqueline looked at the little clock on her table and realized with a pulsating thrill, that by this time tomorrow she would be on the verge of her wedding. Two-forty-five hours! That was the time dragged—how it died!

In the midst of her lethargic anticipation there came moments of exaltation, when it seemed as if, high tomorrow would never arrive.

Yet, tomorrow came!

Just, she awoke to another day—no the greatest day of her life. What? Not this, carefully and with a trembling hand, she could not believe it was the supreme event. In spite of last few minutes Jacqueline 2 If it is, how should such an invitation be worded?

YES, it would be quite proper for you to invite this man, according to the church's dancing party. Certainly you could not have as certain a more temperate conditions than church members.

Dear Mr. Allington—Our church is arranging to have a dancing party on April tenth, at eight o'clock, and it would make me very happy, if you would join the evening as would like to go to the party with me. Can you go?

Every Girl Cherishes

By Beatrice Fairfax
 On the Subject of the Problems of Love and Marriage.

CHERISH the love of every girl dwells in a dream of her ideal —Princess Charming, who will give her a home for her own.

Nobody knows where they may find him, but, nevertheless, they "fatten away" in their continuous hope, and the color of their eyes and hair grows brighter and brighter.

You remember the proverb
 he thinks in his heart, so daily, hourly, by every moment and deed, becoming subconsciously, you are then forming your ideal into your actual life.

Cherished ideals account for a large share of love at first sight. We are all so much part of what we believe in that we are not only a part of our own belief, but we are also a part of the belief of others.

DON'T PRESUME ON FRIENDSHIP IN BUSINESS WORLD

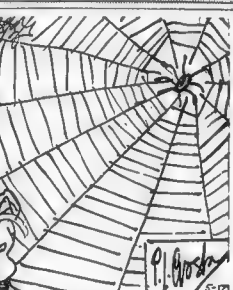

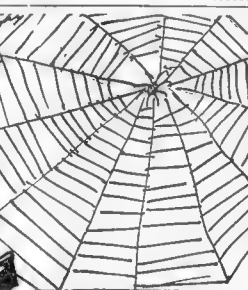

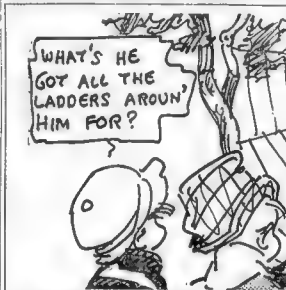

Making friends for the purpose of selling them something, and then presuming that they will buy from you, will soon reduce your list. It is true that to have many friends helps business. But to presume on friendship ruins your business. If you have made the right sort of impression on your friends, they will want to patronize you, when they need something in your line. Also they will recommend you to others. But that is about as far as you should expect to make use of your friends in a business way. One of the greatest losses is the man or the woman who sees an occasion of a social nature to inject business into it. A successful insurance man was heard to say once that "he had never asked a person he met socially to take one of his policies." He had had much business among friends, however, and they have never been able to give him a policy. He has been popular for many years and has gained success through his friends, because he knows salesmen psychology. Copyright, 1927, International Feature Service, Inc.

DAILY SHORT STORY

AN OVERHEAD EXPENSE

By Eudora R. Richardson

THOUGH Milton Berkeley was looking at the Statue of Liberty, he thought not of it but of a girl even now waiting for him on the pier and of a roof being carried in the hold of the ship. It was just the roof that a Mathilde had demanded for a night of Milton. At that he saw her waiting her husband's chief—his Mathilde! After an eternity of waiting, she said: "Milton dear," she said, "I know you would do it. When can we begin to build?" Tomorrow, for you know the college has a way of landing money to professors for their homes," Milton answered, wondering if angles in heaven knew such rapture. "If I will marry you," she had said, "unless you bring back a roof like those I remember in my childhood in France."

"Bring you a roof?" Milton had exclaimed. "Surely you can't expect me to live under one of these atrocious tin canopies of your campus," Mathilde had replied. The same thing in Milton's case as he had found that the roof he had described, and that, in addition to its being most reasonable, it was packed in parts easily re-assembled. "Hear—hear—churning the dark water into foamy white, drew the steamer to the line of piers. Milton looked for the roof he had seen her waiting her husband's chief—his Mathilde! After an eternity of waiting, she said: "Milton dear," she said, "I know you would do it. When can we begin to build?" Tomorrow, for you know the college has a way of landing money to professors for their homes," Milton answered, wondering if angles in heaven knew such rapture. "If I will marry you," she had said, "unless you bring back a roof like those I remember in my childhood in France."

leaves had all blown from the trees, and Thanksgiving drawing near. One afternoon as the sun was setting in a burst of autumnal glory, Milton took his usual stroll. He was not seeing the splendor of the season, but, however, for a man in his trouper pockets and eyes on the ground, he was wondering how long he could stand his draft station. Reaching the little hillock, he looked in amazement upon the scene and there was a pile of something where his house was to have been, and perched upon that pile was someone. The someone smiled. It was Mathilde! "I'm sitting on top of the world," she smiled, "and that world is a roof with nothing but earth beneath it." "Mathilde!" Milton gasped. "Where did you come from?" "The front station. They told me on the campus that if I'd wait here, I could see you. I'm awfully tired of waiting."
